

AMERICAN MURDERERS: GUILTY FOR THEIR GOLD ARE JABED OUT ON THEIR SHIPS

Outrage Is Laid at the Doors of Mexican Bandits in State of Jalisco; Masonic Temple Wrecked and Looted by Carranza Troops at Guanajuato; Villa Soldiers Outrage Young Girls in Guanajuato District.

"STEVE" Parmenter, an American, was killed by bandits at the El Favor mine, state of Jalisco, two weeks ago. The mine was raided by bandits who, after they had killed the American, obtained an iron bar and tore out a number of gold teeth from the dead man's mouth. Meager details of the killing are contained in a letter received here from Guadalajara.

Whether Parmenter was deliberately killed by the bandits or was shot while attempting to guard the mine property is not known. The bandits, as far as is known, were affiliated with neither faction, but were an independent band that had been operating in the region for months. Parmenter had been connected with the El Favor mine for about a year. His home is in Los Angeles, and was first engaged in mining on the west coast, making a trip through Tepic and Sinaloa.

Masonic Lodge Looted.
The looting and desecration of the Masonic lodge at Guanajuato by Carranza troops, under command of Gen. Pablo de la Garza, is described by an American who arrived here Monday and witnessed the whole proceeding. The Carranza troops, when they entered the town, took over the Masonic temple as a headquarters. The lodge is "Archibuteo No. 15." For a short time the troops respected the property, but, upon receiving orders to proceed north, the building was totally wrecked. The jeweled collars and robes used in the lodge were draped around burros, which were prodded up and down the streets by the apaches belonging to the lodge. Carpets were torn up to be used as saddle blankets, and even the green baize was torn from the billiard tables and the cushions laced with knives. The interior of the lodge room was riddled with bullets. The only piece of property that was not damaged was the lodge charter, which hung in a large frame. The foreign members of the lodge were forced to watch the looting of the lodge, powerless to offer any protection for their property.

District In Want.
W. S. Lewis and family, Americans, arriving from the petroleum district near Elano, Mexico, reported today that territory was laid desolate by Carranza troops and approximately 30,000 persons were killed. He stated that 11 American families were isolated at the Andador colony adjoining the petroleum district. Dr. C. F. Braden, representative of the American Red Cross, sent a request to Washington for their property.

WAGONS REPLACE CORRAL TEELS OF MEXICAN TRAINS

Roads From Mexican Capital Are Reminders of the Prairie Schooner Days.

Mexico City, Mex., June 7 (by mail).—Whereas once luxurious Pullman trains with handsomely furnished dining cars and all the luxuries of modern travel left Mexico City for the principal cities of the United States, the roads out of the capital now resemble the American highways in the old frontier days when prairie schooners were the only means of communication. No one can enter or leave the capital now save by wagon or automobile.

The pitiable condition of Mexico City at present is a sad commentary on the situation by rail, mail and all other means, was made evident today by a circular issued by the British legation. This circular was addressed to 400 foreigners of all nationalities who have been vainly trying to leave the capital for the past few weeks. Among them are 34 Italians who wish to join the colors. Thirteen other nationalities are represented, including 39 Americans.

All passengers are instructed to be at Calle Poncia Arriaga, in front of the Palacio Legislativo at 4 a. m. The train will leave at 4 a. m. The vehicles will not wait for anyone who is late. Women, children and infirm will be carried on foot. No baggage whatsoever will be allowed on the train.

No Food Along Way.
The train party will unite with the wagon train at Tlaxcala, whence all will proceed to the place of embarkment, where a "lunch" will be served. No one must count on obtaining any provisions or foodstuffs on the trip. Food and water for at least four days should be carried by each.

The fare on these primitive trains ranges from $15 to $100 Mexican currency. Even these services have been in existence only a short time.

TODAY'S AMUSEMENTS.
"THE CARPET FROM BAGDAD."
A tale of exciting adventure in that mystic eastern country, where dark and sinister forces are at work. The infidel is "The Carpet from Bagdad," the adaptation of Jarrod McGrath's well known story, filmed by the Bell branch of the big V-L-S-E combination.

The story is well known and needs no review. It is a tale of action, fascinating mystery and a venture that will appeal to all classes. Kathryn Williams, as a young girl, is very different from the stately woman we are accustomed to see. She brings her delightful personality into the story. She is ably supported by Wheeler Oakman, Guy Oliver, Eugene Bessner, Frank Clark and Charles Clary.

"The Carpet from Bagdad" is showing at the cool Alhambra theatre, sure to take advantage of the opportunity to see it.—Advertisement.

THE UNIQUE.
"For the Honor of a Woman," one of those gorgeous Oriental pictures of the Egyptian empire, will be shown in the Unique's program today. This is a beautiful picture, as well as a gripping human drama of the passions. The tormented boat destroyed in a typhoon on the yellow sea will also be a part of the program.—Advertisement.

CORRAL TEELS OF KIDNAPING PLAN

Auto Driver Testifies that a Former El Paso Policeman Was Implicated.

The story of the kidnaping of Jesus Guadarrama was told in detail by Louis Cornu in a continuation of the examining trial of Hector Ramos and Hipolito Villa, charged with conspiracy to kidnap, in justice J. M. Deaver's court Tuesday morning. Shortly after the alleged kidnaping, Cornu was charged with being an accomplice.

Cornu testified that the day before the kidnaping, Francisco Bustamante, said to be a Villa secret service man, told him that "we have the goods on Guadarrama and are going to arrest him and take him to the police station in El Paso." The witness stated that he knew Guadarrama had been passing counterfeit money and had heard that he was going to sell some to Bustamante.

Used Own Auto.
"Just before the kidnaping, Bustamante met me at the secret service office and told me to go and get Jesus Guadarrama's automobile in Juarez," he testified. "I went over and got the machine and Bustamante came back with me. I did not find out that they were going to take Guadarrama across the river until a minute before the kidnaping, when we reached Second and Santa Fe streets."

"A Stearns and another person got out of the machine and crossed the street. A minute or two later I saw the men with Guadarrama under an electric light. They came over to the machine and I drove to Juarez. We stopped first at the customs house and then went to the secret service station. All got out and went into the station. There were several in the office, including a man named de la Rosa and a man named de la Cruz. Neither Hipolito Villa or Ramos was there."

Former El Paso Policeman.
Cornu told of having formerly been in the employ of Francisco Villa, in charge of an automobile. He stated that a short time before the kidnaping he had accompanied Stearns, a former El Paso policeman, to Juarez to act as interpreter in an effort to get employment for Stearns with the secret service. He testified that Stearns had told him he, Stearns, was to get $100 or $125 from Hipolito Villa for the kidnaping. The witness stated that he also expected to be rewarded, but did not know who was to pay him.

KRESS ROBBERY CASE ON TRIAL

Tompkins Declares Another Man Planned Jewelry Store Robbery.

The trial of Roscoe Tompkins, indicted for burglary in connection with the robbery of the Kress store, when $1000 in change was taken from the safe, started in the 34th district court Tuesday morning.

Billy Smith, former city detective, was on the stand for some time. He told of having been "rigger" off by Victor Ochon to who blew the safe, and of having worked on the case for a week before he finally arrested Tompkins. He induced Tompkins to show him where some money was concealed by intimating that he knew he was guilty and wanted him to divide the loot, he testified. Tompkins took him to a vacant lot on West San Antonio street at night, he stated, and about $300 in half dollars, dimes, nickels and pennies, were recovered. He then placed Tompkins under arrest, he said, and took him to the police station. To counsel for the defense he stated that he had seen Tompkins in Ochon's office once or twice.

Implicates Ochon.
Tompkins, on the stand in his own defense, told a long story, without interruption, of how his wife had been sick and he was out of money; that while in this predicament he met Victor Ochon. Ochon had offered to sell some articles that he had, he testified, but he had not taken them.

"Ochon learned that I was a safe expert, and he made several propositions to me," he testified. "One was to rob a jewelry store on San Antonio street near El Paso street. On another occasion he told me that a certain Villa agent had just received $10,000 for the month's purchases and he was proposition that I take the agent out near Fort Bliss on the pretense of showing him where Ochon had hidden arms and ammunition hidden. When I got him out there I was to hold him up at the point of a pistol and force him to sign some checks in my favor and then get rid of him. I refused, as I refused all of his other propositions."

"On the day of the Kress robbery, Ochon told me that some fellows were going to do a job that night and that he could help. He said that there wouldn't be any killing in this job and that it would be easy. He also said that Billy Smith had said that there were some diamonds there."

The trial was postponed until the afternoon session when Tompkins was expected to complete his story of the robbery.
